Inspect your ACE Factor and submit an Audio Snapshot

Hello!

Thanks for downloading this document. It is your first step to increasing your appreciation of your voice, your spoken word expression and your delivery style as a leader, manager or entrepreneur.

An audio snapshot is a quick, easy recording you can make of your voice as you speak. You found this document under The ACE Factor on the Voice & Word website page that's dedicated to excellent vocal practices for leaders, managers and entrepreneurs.

To inspect your ACE Factor, prepare a 2-minute spoken word piece that you believe will demonstrate that you speak with authority, credibility and a sense of engagement.

As an example, you may decide to speak about the progress of a current project. Within this, you may want to show your confidence, your commitment and your enthusiasm for the work. Perhaps you wish to express some concerns that your audience may harbouring. You may wish to scope a clearer picture of the project's desired outcomes. You may need to speak with interest and passion so that your audience is motivated to follow you. Consider these and other ideas. Then put them down on a notepad and give the words a run through. Speak it out loud.

Listen to how you sound. Where does a sense of authority arise in your voice? Look for it in your pitch, tone, volume or delivery style. How does your voice transmit your credibility as a leader? Will this carry the project to fruition? And where have you demonstrated your skills in engagement with your audience? In story, in expressed vulnerability, in shared experiences?

When you're ready, complete your audio snapshot and receive free feedback from me.
