A Master Class is made up of a group of professionals devoting 2 hours to a specific-purpose workshop with a topic specialist. Master Classes are valuable platforms for developing unique, specific skills in a confidential, relaxed environment. At the Voice & Word Studio in Carnegie, Sandra Baigel runs small group Master Classes of up to 6 people at a time. Participants can be from the same company, but are more likely to attend as individuals from business, industry and the professions.

In February and April 2012, Master Classes will focus on Voice, its auditory impact and reach, as an influential tool in conversation and communication.

Session 1 February 27, 6.00pm for 6.15-8.30pm	Topic: 'Voice Placement' Discover how to improve your vocal quality by honouring your natural pitch range and adjusting the placement of your voice in your mouth.
Session 2, April 30, 6.00pm for 6.15-8.30pm	Topic: 'Voice Projection' Discover how to gain attention, hold focus and influence people to action when you fill a room with the sound and movement of your voice.
